

Maurice-Angelin Luisier and his wife Adèle Luisier-Maret (1893-1984) ran a small grocery shop in Sarreyer alongside their farming work, which included livestock, cereals and small fruits. The shop was in a granary from where they sold mainly salt, a precious commodity that wasn't found anywhere else. Maurice-Angelin Luisier (1882-1966) in his shop.